'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Christmas is slowly but surely creeping upon us. Something ought to be done about the whole matter.

* * * *

Now that Thanksgiving day is over, some of our best families will be dining on turkey hash until Sunday. The turkey hash problem can be solved easily, however, with everyone eating his or her share of turkey along with someone else's share.

* * * *

It seems to be an old American custom that as soon as Thanksgiving dinner is finished, the family arises and declares that the bird was the tenderest ever eaten.

* * * *

One of these days we are going to hear a person confess that he or she has never worked in the newspaper "game" and then we are going to go off some place and die. The shock will be to much.

* * * *

So far the west has won every football game this year, with one exception—Stanford tied with Minnesota.

* * * *

Today Pop Warner's red shirted players will meet with the Dartmouth team. This should be a football game, no less.

* * * *

Speaking of sports, how many of you have attended the city basketball league games at the Roosevelt junior high school gymnasium Mondays and Thursdays?

* * * *

They are some of the best games we have ever seen. Every team has been showing a fighting spirit that cannot be denied.

Mark Twain says that a sense of humor is something to be proud of. These weren't the late Mr. Twain's exact words, but they give you a rough idea of what it is all about.

There is one boy whom we know who was totally without a sense of humor several years ago. But since that time he has developed one of the keenest senses of humor that we have had the pleasure to see in some time.

AIMEE SAID TO BE WORSE

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 28.—UP—A two-minute radio talk through a bedside microphone was reported today to have caused a slight setback in the condition of Aimee Semple McPherson, Angelus Temple evangelist.

The strain of raising her voice so that it was audible over the loud speaker system in the church at last night's services and for aerial broadcast was said to have fatigued Mrs. McPherson considerably.

F. C. Winter, business manager at the Temple said that Aimee could hear the services from the Temple from her bedroom window and that the emotional strain had not helped her nervous condition.

During the day her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, from whom she became estranged a second time last summer, issued an open letter to her daughter in which she urged her to "drive the money changers from the Temple." The letter appealed to Mrs. McPherson to "turn to the old time religion and rid Angelus Temple of those people who are ruining you and who want only a pay check."

NEW BLIZZARD SWEEPS ON EAST; 100 REPORTED DEAD

OFFICIAL TO RECOMMEND CHANGE

Tonnage handled over the Richmond wharves would increase almost 50 per cent if this city were placed on a parity with other cities of the bay region.

This was the estimate of city officials yesterday following the conclusion of a hearing at the city council chambers before Alfred Haggerty, examiner for the interstate commerce commission.

Haggerty declared, when the hearing adjourned, that he will recommend to the commission that joint rail and water rates between this city and the Pacific northwest be put into effect immediately to eliminate a 30 per cent differential that now operates against Richmond.

Mass of Evidence

It is expected that Haggerty will make his recommendation to the commission, which is now in session, either this morning or early next week.

Haggerty was presented with a mass of evidence yesterday, showing that if this city were placed on a parity with other cities of the bay region, both shippers and consumers would benefit to a high degree.

The hearing was opened with City Manager James A. McVittie on the stand. McVittie answered routine questions as to the local harbor and wharves.

LOST SCHOOL TEACHER IS FEARED SLAIN

FORT MORGAN, Colo., Nov. 28—(UP)— Personal belongings of Enid Marriotts were found today scattered along Bijou irrigation canal, five miles east of Wiggins, Colo., by searchers for her body.

The 32-year old grade school teacher's beads and nail file, and buttons from her dress, were among the aritcles discovered near a bridge which extends over the canal. Searchers also found a bottle of toilet water, identified as the property of Miss Marriotts beneath a layer of ice in the ditch.

Added to these clues, regarded by authorities as proof that Miss Marriott was kidnapped and slain and her body thrown into the canal, was the finding late yesterday of a blood-stained hatbox that the teacher carried when she disapeared mysteriously the evening of Nov. 16.

More than 100 volunteer searchers, equiped with pickaxes, chopped through ice of the creek today in an attempt to find the teacher's body. They also flooded the canal with water hoping to clear it.

The desolate country also was searched from the air by Fred Young, Denver, Pilot, and deputy sheriff Homer McMullen.

An insurance policy for $1,000 and some school papers were found in the hatbox.

Authorities so far have been unable to establish a motive for the strange disappearance of possible murder of the attractive teacher.

Miss Marriott, a former university of Colorado co-ed, stepped from a train at the Wiggins depot a week ago Sunday and started toward her hotel two blocks distant. She had spent the week-end visiting friends in Denver. An investigation disclosed she never reached the hotel.

PASSENGERS IN PANIC AS SHIP, FERRY CRASH

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 28.UP—Groping its way slowly through a dense fog on San Francisco bay today, the American Hawaiian freighter Pennsylvania struck the Southern Pacific ferryboat Oakland, tearing a 25-foot gash in the side of the ferry, and throwing passengers into a momentary panic.

The accident occurred at 11 a.m. two hours after another freighter, the British ship Irisbank had collided with the Southern Pacific ferry Santa Clara in a less serious crash.

Damage was slight and no injuries of consequence were reported in either crash, because of the reduced speed of all four vessels involved, as they crept through the fog.

Panic On Ferries

Scenes of excitement reigned aboard the Oakland as the steel prow of the Pennsylvania ploughed into the side of the wooden ferryboat, ripping away rows of seats that would have been filled with people a few hours before, when the rush hour for commuters was at its height.

Passengers hurried to procure life preservers from the racks,

RECORD COLD RECORDED IN EAST

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—UP—A new blizzard swept across the western plains tonight in the wake of a nation-wide extreme cold wave.

The Arctic circle brewed the latest snowstorm which billowed southeastward across the Canadian border, dumping snow as it went.

The Dakotas already were enveloped in swirling snow which piled rapidly in deep drifts. By tomorrow night, said the weather bureau, the whole midwest will feel the brunt of the storm.

With 100 persons dead directly or indirectly because of the bitter cold and with the whole country from the Rockies to the Atlantic coast in the grip of sub-normal temperatures, the new blizzard is expected to bring somewhat warmer weather.

In Chicago, where thermometers got down to one degree above zero, the mercury was expected to rise rapidly during the snowstorm to about 30 above.

It was 19 below zero at Brainerd, Minn., and 20 above at Asheville, S. C., where northerners went in search of a warm climate and got fooled, at least momentarily.

It was [illegible] in Duluth, other below zero readings including 8 at Lacrosse, 6 at St. Paul and 4 at Madison, Wis.

In Indiana, Illinois and Iowa, temperatures stood near the zero mark.

ODD FELLOWS FIVE TO MEET SANTA FE

The league leading position of the Santa Fe hoopsters will be in danger Monday evening when the Richmond Odd Fellows go into action against the Studebakers in an A division contest on the Roosevelt gymnasium floor.

The Odd Fellows will have their chance Monday night to go into a tie with the Santa Fe aggregation. Santa Fe went into the lead last Monday when they trounced the McRacken boys in a cyclone affair.

The lodgemen are rated a fairly strong chance of winning Monday night's battle. Yet the Studebakers are always serious threats to any team. Although they have not yet been victorious this year, they have only been edged out by a very thin margin in every contest, and, as they are now becoming extremely anxious to break into the winning column, may turn the tables on the linkers Monday evening.

The B division will have plenty to offer in the way of fast, clever battling basketball Monday when the Mastercraft Roofers and the Garfinkle Clothiers mingle at 7:30 o'clock. The Roofers have already given the Clothiers a narrow shave this season, and are liable to repeat the incident with perhaps different results. Garfinkle's bucket shooters have a tricky, fast defense that usually does great damage, while the Roofers have an almost perfect defense. The combination as it will be seen on the Roosevelt floor Monday night should offer the local cage fans something to talk about during the intermission between the B and A contests.

MICKEY WALKER WINS BY K. O.

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—UP—Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion scored a one round victory over Myer K. O. Christner, of Akron, Onio, here tonight.

Walker weighed 166 1-4, Christner 202.

The bout was Walker's second invasion of the heavyweight class but his victory brought him no new laurels. He was booed as he left the ring. His knockout apparently failed to sitisfy and the fans believed that Christner had taken "i dive."

The Akron heavyweight went to the canvas before the fight was a half minute old. The punch which sent him down was a left hook to the jaw. He arose after a count of four and Walker rushed him across the ring. When they reached the far side, Christner plunged through the ropes without taking a hard blow and he was counted out while lying among the press row occupants. The time of the knockout was 58 seconds.

ALL COAST 11 SELECTED BY SCRIBES

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 28.—UP—The annual United Press all-coast football team selected by sports editors and writers from every section represented by contending talent, was made public today.

The team represented a concensus of newspaper writers, rather than the opinion of any or more correspondents of the United Press which participated only in collecting and editing the votes.

Selections were solicited only of writers who had seen most of the players they picked perform. Several writers had seen virtually every contender.

First team:

Arbelbide, Southern California and Ebdiug, St. Mary's ends.

Edwards, Washington State, and Schwegler, Washington, tackles.

Beckett, California and Baker, U. S. C. guards.

Hein, Washington State, center.

Duffield, U. S. C., quarterback.

Pinckert, U. S. C., and Kitzmiller Oregon, halfbacks.

Schwartz, Washington State, fullback.

Second team:

McKalip, Oregon State, and Maskel, Washington State, ends.

Hall Southern California and Christensen, Oregon, tackles.

Co'bert, Oregon, and Parodi, Washington State, guards.

Tassi, Santa Clara, center.

Mohler, Southern California, quarterback.

Stennett, St. Mary's and Ellingsen, Washington State, halfbacks.

Rothert, Stanford, fullback.

The "first" team, from end to end, was the result of virtual unanimity, with one exception. There were many who favored McKalip, Oregon State's great pass receiver, at end.

The "first" backfield furnished controversy in large volume. There was only one common choice—Ernie Pinckert, Southern California's great blocking back. Johnny Kitzmiller, Oregon's "Flying Dutchman" and the hero of the St. Mary's game, barely won a halfback spot from such brilliant claimants as Ellingsen, Stennett and Rothert. One writer had selected him as all-coast quarter, and this vote was thrown in to give him the edge.

Schwartz, at fullback, was the winner because scribes were divided in their allegiance to Rothert and Stennett.

Duffield found himself closely pressed by his great running mate, Orville Mohler. Duffield got a close call, several writers confessing they were unable to find a football virtue in him that was not balanced by some corresponding talent in Mohler, finally recalling his previous years of stellar service to support the thory that his increment of football brains entitled him to the call.

Those failing to poll enough votes to place on either, but receiving enthusiastic support from writers who apparently had seen them on their unbeatable afternoons were; Neill of Stanford; Henefisty, Washington, Swerbeck, St. Mary's; Wilcox, U. S. C., ends; Tandy, Stanford; McNally, St. Mary's; Ah'skog, W. S. C.; Bogue, Stanford, tackles; Cox, O. S. C., Handy, California; Fisher, St Mary's, guards; Hammer, O. S. C., center and such great backs as Brovelli, Boyle and Toscani of St. Mary's; Mettler of Santa Clara; Hufford and Marsh of Washington; Tonkin and Lainhart of Washington State; Moffatt and Hillman of Stanford; Griffiths, Schaldach and Gill of California; Musick of U. S. C. Rushlow of Oregon and Duerke of Oregon State.

LABARBA WINS FROM TAYLOR

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. —UP—Fidel LaBarba, California featherweight, won the decision over Bud Taylor, veteran Terre Haute boxer in a ten round bout at Madison square Garden tonight.

La Bara, following his announced plan of attack to the body was guilty of an inordinate amount of clinching which may have been unintentional because of his trying to stay in close.

The score sheet showed that LaBarba won six rounds, three were even, and Taylor was credited with having won but one, the seventh.

Pop Warner Says Dartmouth Will Win

PALO ALTO, Nov. 28.—UP—Intersectional football rivalry between the far west and the east will be renewed here tomorrow when Stanford and Dartmouth meet for the first time on the gridiron.

A crowd of more than 50,000 is expected to see the game which will be played for the benefit of the unemployed of the San Francisco bay region and the State of New Hampshire. After several days of damp, chilly weather, the skies cleared today and a bright sun beamed down, making the weather almost hot. Another warm day is forecast for tomorrow.

The change in the weather caused Coach Jackson Cannell to call off practice for the Dartmouth squad.

No Defeats

It has been a long time since an eastern team has defeated a far-western eleven, but this unbeaten Dartmouth outfit which has only a scoreless tie with Ya'e to mar an otherwise perfect record seems to have about as good a chance to take the measure of Stanford as any representative from the east has had in recent years.

Even Pop Warner concedes that Dartmouth has the better team, but Warner's opinion possibly should be ruled out on two scores: (1) that he is trying to gain a psychological edge for Stanford, (2 that that he hasn't seen Dartmouth play or had any of his staff scout the eastern outfit.

"I think Dartmouth will win," says Warner, "because they have have a better line than we have, and have had two weeks rest while we had our big game with California last week. Our team isn't in a class with the teams that beat the Army in 1928 and last year."

Warner Lauds Team

In four games between the east and far west last year, the east couldn't score a victory. Stanford beat Army 34 to 13, California won from Pennsylvania, 12 to 7, and southern California conquered Carnegie Tech, 45 to 13 and Pittsburgh 47 to 14.

Warner thinks highly of two of his players on this year's Stanford team. They are Harlow Rothert, 197-pound fullback, and Phil Moffatt, 161-pound fullback. He ranks Moffatt above Rothert, indeed above every other back on the west coast.

Stanford, which was held to a scoreless tie by Minnesota and conquered, 41 to 12, by southern California, will depend largely on Moffatt and Rothert to bring victory tomorrow to the Indians, officially designated as the new nickname of Stanford's team in place of Cardinal's.

Dartmouth's trip out here, comprising approximately 3,600 miles and some five days including a couple of short stopovers, is one of the longest transcontinental football journeys ever made. Aside from a recurrence of an old knee injury to Len Clark, star halfback, the Dartmouth team is in good condition. Coach Cannell said today that the warm weather wasn't likely to have an ill effect on his team, and that if Stanford won it would be because the westerners had the better team.

Kearns Must Pay Alimony

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—UP— Jack Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey, received a blow below the belt—to the pocketbook in fact—when Judge Kerner ruled today in circuit court that he must pay Mrs. Legna Kearns $500 a month alimony.

Kearns has denied that he was married, claiming that Legna was only a "girl friend," but he has filed a suit for annulment of marriage the court pointed out, which was held to be evidence that she was Mrs. Kearns.

EAST ELEVENS GIVEN SMALL CHANCES

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—UP—Eastern football prestige is expected to take a fresh tumble tomorrow when six teams from this sector meet midwest, far west and southern foes.

Two of the best teams of the east Army and Dartmouth, play in the two most important games of the day. Army is meeting Notre Dame at Chicago, while Dartmouth is on the far coast playing Stanford.

Hopes for victory for the eastern contestant is not bright in either of these feature games. Notre Dame has won so handily over team with ratings even higher than that enjoyed by the Army that the cadets are given little chance of winning.

Dartmouth's record is extremely bright except for the 0 to 0 tie with an only fair Yale team. Stanford was badly beaten by U. S. C. and was tied by Minnesota at 0-0, but the large margins held by the Palo Altoans over other rivals have indicated a probable victory over Dartmouth.

Back here in the east, Washington State's hucky gridiron men will play a nervy Villanova team which is held to have almost no real chance to win.

There is another intersectional contest in Philadelphia. Temple will play Drake from the midwest. Each team has a fair record.

Georgetown has gone out to Detroit, probably to take another bating, while Vanderbilt will entertain Maryland at Nashville in a game that looks like a southern victory.

Chief Bender Faces Charges

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 28.—UP—Charles A. (Big Chief) Bender, former star pitcher for the Philadelphia Athletics, was charged with reckless driving today and will be given a hearing next Thursday.

Bender's car collided with one driven by Louis Goldberg. Goldberg was cut slightly. Goldberg also was charged with reckless driving.

Can Covers Used As Toboggans At Yosemite Park

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Ashcan covers at Yosemite national park make good toboggans if the activity of visitors there last year is an indication.

Two rangers are placed at the bottom of the slide to untangle toboggonists from the snow and check on the ashcan covers.

Persons are limited to five rides a day, and they must sign for the cover. One day last year 1500 signed for the cover ride.

MAN'S HISTORY, CHICAGO FAIR EXHIBIT

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—UP— The mounds, ruins, temples, religious symbols and other traces of cultural attainment comprise the language in which the archaeologist and anthropologist read the story of the progress of human culture.

While the Chicago World's Fair in 1933 will have as its central theme the conquests of a century of progress made possible by scientific achievements in transportation, the telephone and radio, lighting, machine of production, medicine and education, back of all this is the story of Man himself. This is the theme of the anthropological exhibit.

Twelve acres have been reserved for the story of man's culture on American soil.

Regional Differences

Social organization, ceremonial life and artistic ideals show the same regional differences, and if man's body is studied it becomes apparent that physical type likewise shows variations, according to Dr. Fay-Cooper Cole, professor of anthropology at the University of Chicago.

When the American Indian cultures are plotted on the map they fall into nine distinct culture areas north of Mexico. These range from the primitive hunting groups to settled agriculturists.

Culture Topic

In connection with these groupings the Anthropological Exposition is designed to answer questions concerning the relation of culture to environment, the effect of trade, warfare, inter-marriage and migrations on institutions and physical types.

In the allotted space the separate groups will be arranged in geographical relation to one another, and with native Indians and Eskimo present to depict their daily life and tribal customs.

These groups include besides the Eskimo, the California Indians of the Northwest Coast, the Blackfoot hunters of the great plains, the pueblo builders and the nomadic Navajoes, expert horsemen and sheep herders.

Greatest Achievement

"Finally," says Dr. Cole, "comes the greatest achievement of early man in America—a great Maya temple. On a huge terrace overlooking the surrounding territory will be an exact reproduction of the four buildings comprising the famous nunnery at Uxmal in Yucatan."

Within the temple will be exhibits depicting the life of man from the embryo to adult life. Here the visitor will see the races of man, the effects of race crossing problems of growth and other more technical subjects. Here also will appear a section of one of the great pre-historic caves of France, so excavated that the growth of human culture and the changes in man's body can be traced over a period of 50,000 years.

ARMY FLIERS TEMPTED BY OFFERS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—UP— The Army's difficulty in retaining its flight officers in the face of tempting financial offers from civil aviation was emphasized today in the annual report of Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of the Air Corps.

More Air Corps officers resigned during the past fiscal year to take positions with commercial aviation companies than ever before, Fechet reported.

A "serious shortage" in lighter-than-air officers also is troubling the Air Corps, Fechet said. There are only 25 officers actually engaged in lighter-than-air operations, although there are approximately 90 competent for service on balloons.

Standards for commissioning Air Reserve officers were changed during the last fiscal year, so that civilians may qualify by 400 hours flying in any class of plane.

Physical comfort of the Air corps was improved by expenditure of $5,295,000 for new barracks at Langley Field, Va., March Field, Cal., Mitchel Field New York Randolph Field, Tex., and Selfridge Field, Mich.

Importance of radio communication was stressed in Fechet's report. New and improved equipment has greatly raised the efficiency of radio communication. Also, extension of the Army's teletype circuits has provided a much more efficient weather report.

Too Many Heirs Spoil Public School Pudding

CANON CITY, Colo., Nov. 28.—UP—Colorado's loss was a gain for the kingdom of Jugoslavia when S. Yobanobitch, consul for the royal kingdom, proved to Judge Eldred's satisfaction that 15 heirs of Barbara Barshin lived in his country. If heirship had not been proved, the $2,260.50 estate would have gon to the public school fund.

Poodle Picks Platinum Pin

MILFORD, N. Y.—While frolicking on the shore of the Delaware river, a fox terrier owned by Mrs. Clayton B. Seagears picked up a shiny object and brought it home. It proved to be a valuable platinum bar pin, set with nine diamonds. Mrs. A. Fleisch, a visitor, had lost it while watching bathers.

POWER FIRMS ARE MODERN MAGIC

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—UP—Almost as Alladin-like as electricity itself is the story of the men who dominate the power industry in this country today.

They rubbed the lamp of electricity and not only achieved an age of miracles, but consummated, each in a large field, the control of a network of power projects that ramify through this country and countries beyond the seas.

But they started in a small way, growing with the industry itself. Today, they sit in luxurious offices and have their fingers upon the pulse of an electrical empire represented in corporations that stretch over many states.

Electric Empire

No name is more potent today in this modern electrical empire than that of Sidney Z. Mitchell, chairman of the board of the Electric Bond and Share company, but director also in 23 other large companies, each with its subsidiaries.

This man of millions who lives rather plainly in New York worked night and day years ago in the northwest, as a husky, ambitious youngster, to get his first power plant started. It was new ground for him as for everybody else, but he followed the adage of the west and got on the ground floor.

Chain Grows

His plant once organized and operating, he began to state others. He was induced to come to New York by Charles A. Coffin of the General Electric company, and there he began to build up his present string of holding companies and corporations.

Today he is rated one of the 12 richest men in America.

Another interesting power magnate is Samuel Insull, of Chicago, born and educated an Englishman. He entered the power business through the school of the wizard of electricity, Thomas A. Edison.

Coming here from England at the age of 22 in 1881, he became secretary to Edison, and for many years managed the inventor's business affairs and participated in organization of his companies, when all Edison's companies were consolidated into the Edison General Electric company, Insull became second vice president in charge of manufacturing and selling.

Heads Companies

Subsequently, Insull went to Chicago and organized the various enterprises in the middle-west which he now controls.

Henry L. Doherty, head of Cities Service and dominant figure in many power projects, fulfills the American success legend completely. He started to work as office boy in a gas company when he was 12 years old, and at the early age of 19 was manager of the company.

In the last few years he branched out and led a movement for conservation of oil which he still is carrying forward.

The Mellon family, which includes the secretary of treasury, also number large power holdings among their great corporate wealth. They were backed by wealth acquired in other directions when they entered the power field.

Famous Diva Lauds Old Age

NEW YORK, Nov. 17. —UP— Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink would like to do something about women. She thinks they're deluded because, poor creatures, they sigh and weep about becoming old, whereas if they had a grain of sense they'd realize a woman's best years are after 50.

Take it from Mother Schumann-Heink, in the current Radio Digest, youth is not as happy and enchanted a period as some would have us believe. In reality it is more a time of many painful experiences.

Mme. Schumann - Heink has found that young and youngish women fail to realize how comfortable it is to sit back and relax after 50. And some already past 50 don't either, she writes.

JACK OAKIE IS STAR IN FILM AT FOX

The great Jack Oakie grin invasion which began, for the delectation of millions of talkie-goers, a year or so ago, continues its irrepressible spasms of laughter at the Fox-California Theater today in "Let's Go Native."

This smiling dean of slang and wise-cracks who began wowing audiencies in "Close Harmony" and continued his veritable panic of mirth in "Hit the Deck" "Sweetie" "The Social Lion" and others, is a bigger and better-thanever riot in "Let's Go Native" in which he is co-starred with Jeanette MacDonald, the princess of "The Love Parade" and supported by Skeets Gallagher, Kay Francis, William Austin and Eugene Pallette.

Oakie is seen as Voltaire McGinnis, the goofy but go-getting taxi cab driver who gets all mixed up with Miss MacDonald's plans for her troupe of show girls who are making a trip to South America to put on a revue for a millionaire. When Oakie's cab runs smack into a police station in New York he is bound to seek refuge on the ship. He gets a job as a stoker but later is promoted to a mess attendant. On the boat are William Austin, society ne'er-do-well, James Hall, disinherited young blue-blood in love with Jeanette MacDonald, and the 75 of her show.

The ship strikes a derelict and all the principals are stranded on a tropical isle where Skeets Gallagher is king. There is an abundance of pearls, and the island spouts oil every time a tent peg is driven, but it is all valueless to the castaways for they are beyond the pale of civilization.

Oakie's part in this hectic plot, one may be sure, is a part that calls for many smart-cracks and much humorous action. To begin with he explains to William Austin that he is called Voltaire because when he was born his mother had a Jewish nurse. "Me mudder told the noice she wanted me called Walter, but the noice wrote it down the way a Jewish noice would pronounce it—'Voltaire.'"

There are five songs in "Let's Go Native." Oakie sings three of them—"Joe Jazz" a solo with dancing choruses on the boat-deck, "I've Got a Yen For You" a duet with Kay Francis on the tropical isle, and "Let's Go Native" with a chorus and reprise by William Austin in the cocoanut grove.

The spicy freshness of the songs is only exceeded by the spicy freshness of Mr. Oakie himself.

San Pablo Man Returns From Northern Cruise

After seven months cruising in Alaskan waters, E. L. Gregory of San Pablo was home today following his arrival from the north on the "Northland."

Until he shipped on the "Northland" Gregory was employed at Mare Island navy yard.

Capt. Edward D. Jones, commander of the craft also acts as United States commissioner for the district.

A trophy carved from a fossil was presented Captain Jones by a native chief who in turn was given an alarm clock, Gregory reported.

'Eyes Of World' Will Be Shown At California

One of the most gripping dramatic situations filmed in many years occurs in Henry King's production of "Eyes of the World," the Inspiration-United Artists picture which opens tomorrow at the Fox-California theater.

The three players enacting this powerful scene are Una Merkel, Nance O'Neil and Hugh Huntley.

Miss O'Neil, shot gun in hand, interrupts a desperate struggle between Miss Merkel and Huntley and compels the latter to get down on his knees to pray for forgiveness.

She is about to shoot the man down at the end of the prayer when John Holland arrives and wrests the gun from her hands.

The scene is typical of the power which King has put into this entertaining dramatization of one of Harold Bell Wright's most popular novels.

PLOT TO SPLIT RED RUSSIA IS TOLD

MOSCOW, Nov. 28.—UP—A fascinating clash of wits held a packed courtroom tense at the treason trial of eight prominent Russian engineers when the state prosecutor, Nicholas Krilenko, began cross-examination today.

Prof. Lenid Ramzin, head of the group fighting for their lives against charges of participation in an alleged international plot for a war of intervention against the Soviet state, coolly parried queries from Krilenko as the pugnacious little prosecutor opened up with his questions.

Krilenko announced he would probe deeply into the alleged activities of French agents who the prisoners confessed operated in Moscow. These agents acted under orders from such high officials as Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, and Raymond Poincare, former president of France and erstwhile premier, the eight engineers alleged.

No Proofs

Proofs to justify the charges against Briand and Poincare, however, will not be presented in public, it was declared, but will be developed at secret sessions.

Under questioning, Ramzin outlined his career. His parents were poor country school teachers, both of them, he said. From the age of 14, he had had to support himself. As a student in 1907, he said he belonged to the Bolshevik wing of the Socialist party, but later concentrated on his scientific studies and disregarded politics.

In 1920, he said he became a Soviet professor and worked loyally for the Soviets. However, he became convinced, he said, that the Soviet union was collapsing and he joined the purported conspiracy for a war of intervention.

Tells Of Life

The audience literally gasped when Ramzin described his mode of life prior to his arrest. He said he got a salary of 1500 rubles a month (nominally a little over $750) that he had a commodious apartment and an automobile. These details might not impress an American courtroom crowd used to figures into the millions, but the Russians could hardly believe that such luxury was possible.

The prisoners under cross examination admitted they had only the haziest notion of what they expected would follow if their plot to overthrow the Soviet government had succeeded. It appeared there had been serious differences of opinion among the conspirators here and abroad.

Victor Parichev, one of the defendants, for instance, declared when he visited western Europe and talked with the white Russian emigres he realized "how hungry for power these sharks are."

Names Not Told

The identities of the French agents hitherto designated by their initials probably will not be disclosed.

According to Ramzin, Larichev and others, these anti-Soviet engineers and professors did their utmost for the last 10 years to starve and unclothe 150,000,000 of their countrymen. They confessed they secretely sought to undermine every effort to reconstruct the nation's economic life.

They themselves meanwhile lived in comparative ease on their remittances from abroad. They confessed they had brought this amazing large scale sabotage to a climax by planning to split up their "holy fatherland" into spheres of economic exploitation among foreign countries.

False Fire Alarm Brings Speedy Arrest

BERKELEY, Nov. 28. — When Cameron Brown, 26, negro pulled a fire alarm signal in this city yesterday "just for fun" he did not know that a few hours later he would be in the city jail.

Brown was taken on a San Francisco bound electric train, and at police headquarters confessed pulling the signal at the corner of Ashby and Adeline. Six companions were arrested but released when Brown was named the responsible party.

ROOT FORMULA TO BE GIVEN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—UP—President Hoover will send the Root World Court formula to the senate this winter, but without asking immediate action on it, he announced today.

Discussing the subject a few minutes earlier, Chairman William E. Borah of the senate foreign relations committee leading opponent of World Court adherence, said he would urge his committee to act on it at once if it came up. Such action would bring it to the floor for action if enough senators pressed for it.

Hoover's action increased the possibility of a legislative jam which might stop some vital appropriation bills and force a special session of the new seventy-second congress, but Republican leaders are confident they can hold the situation in check.

"I am submitting the protocol of the World Court to the senate at the forthcoming session," Hoover said. "I of course have hoped that it would be dealt with at this time. It is for the leaders of the senate, however, to determine if it should be brought up in the press of other business during the short session.

"Certainly it should not be made an instrument of obstruction in attempts to force an extra session. Both its friends and foes should agree upon this."

Ship, 22 Men Feared Lost

MARQUETTE, Mich., Nov. 28.—UP—Coast guard officials said tonight they believed the grain carrier Maple Bay of Montreal, with 22 men aboard, had sunk in Lake Superior.

The Maple Bay has not been reported since it left Beete Gris bay Tuesday afternoon, it was said. It was expected to stop at Marquette to refuel.

Captain T. E. Deegan, coast guard commander, said the craft would have been sighted in the lake before today if it had not sunk.

Shortly after the Maple Bay left Beete Gris bay where it underwent engine repairs, the lake was swept by a violent wind storm, it was recalled.

DOAK NAMED AS LABOR OFFICER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—UP—President Hoover today defiantly named William Nickles Doak, of Virginia, a railway trainman, to be secretary of labor, succeeding Senator-elect James J. Davis. Doak, Washington legislative representative of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen since 1916 is 48 years old.

If confirmed by the senate, he will be the only southerner in the cabinet.

Hoover accompanied announcement of the appointment by reading to correspondents in a dignified but somewhat defiant tone a statement defending his right to appoint whomsoever he found suited to any office, recognizing the protest made against Doak by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor.

Green, in a visit to the White House, served notice his organization would oppose any appointee not a member of a federation union. The railway, trainmen and other railroad brotherhoods split off from the federation years ago and have since operated independently.

"I have the highest respect for Mr. Green and the American Federation of Labor," said Hoover, "but Green's enunciation that appointments must come from one organization in fact imposes upon me the duty to maintain the principle of open and equal opportunity and freedom in appointment to public office."

First Meridian Post Recovered

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—UP—What is believed to be the first meridian post war ever set up in the United States lies hidden from the eyes of sightseers behind a little clump of foliage near the base of Washington monument.

It was established in 1793 by George Washington. He planned the position of the White House so the meridian line would run directly through the center of the mansion. Since that time, the post has been lost, recovered again, and is now almost completely forgotten.

Although it used to be tall, the post now rises but a foot over the ground. It is obscured from view by a group of small trees.

The meridian was set up in 1804 in the presence of President and Mrs. Thomas Jefferson. According to tradition, Mrs. Jefferson gave her thimble to be placed into the foundation.

During the building of the Washington monument the stone was used as a bench mark to determine and compare the levels of the monument.

A line drawn from the centers of the White House and Capitol would intersect in the middle of the old Jefferson meridian.

RADIO SURVEY MADE IN BOOK

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—UP—An analysis of the status of radio as a complement, or competitor of the newspaper has been written by Karl A. Bickel, president of the United Press, as one of the features of his book, "New Empires."

Bickel has considered possible conflicts both in the fields of advertising and news.

"Already we have discovered," he declares in regard to advertising, "that radio advertising, although effective as a general introducer and reminder, does not compare with the newspaper as a medium to excite immediate and definite sales based on specific price appeal, upon which most newspaper advertising is based."

Bickel believes that there seems to be no danger to the newspaper in radio broadcasting of news bulletins.

"But when the radio goes out on its own to cover news and report it," he continues, "then the radio directly invades the newspaper field and becomes competitive with the newspaper. And in that situation lies a germ that can easily develop into a most serious situation to both the radio and newspaper industry unless handled with unusual care, consideration and forethought."

"New Empires" also gives its author's views on journalism schools, on journalism as a profession, and providees an appendix that includes an international survey of the broadcasting industry.

Rockefeller Sees End Of Depression

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. —UP— John D. Rockefeller Jr., expressed a "profound confidence" in the American people to pull the country out of the business depression on his return with Mrs. Rockefeller on the Homeric from a visit in France and Spain.

"As a nation," he said, "I do not think we ever had more to be thankful for than we have today, in spite of everything. The country never had more difficult problems to solve, yet they will be met and ultimately conquered."

WOMAN FLIER FORCED DOWN AT SEA

tended to proceed to Jacksonville, Fla., from there.

Despite strong headwinds, aviation experts said that Mrs. Keith-Miller should have reached Miami by noon at the latest.

Pan-American Airways and the Cuban organization said that none of their planes had sighted Mrs. Miller. They instructed all pilots to watch for the "Bullet" during their regular runs between Havana and Miami.

The steamship Cuba which left Key West this morning and arrived in Havana this afternoon reported it saw nothing of the monoplane. No other ships along the route which Mrs. Miller should have taken reported signting her.

Searching parties from the naval base at Key West and the coast guard there and at Miami were understood to have been ordered out to search the ocean for trace of the missing flier.

The flier carried a small, portable boat, but it was regarded as doubtful that she would be able to get out of the plane and pump the boat up with a small hand pump. Such an operation would be extremely difficult on the rough water.

FEARED WOMAN WAS FORCED DOWN AT SEA

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 28—UP—Failure to find any trace of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, British woman flier, long overdue here on her flight from Havana led to the belief late today she might have been forced down in the gulf stream.

Thorough search by airplanes of the lower Florida coast and the Keys area disclosed no trace of the aviatrix.

Attendants at Curtiss-Wright field in Havana said she started for Miami on a 34 degree course direct and without allowing for any wind drift, apparently. The gasoline supply must have been exhausted by 3 p. m., E.S.T.

At Jacksonville, N. A. Maloney, manager of the Municipal airport, said he had received no word from Mrs. Keith-Miller. He added, however, that he was not seriously concerned for her safety, since she was down at Charleston, S. C., a week ago for four hours without revealing her identity, while an exhaustive search was being made for her.

LITTLE HOPE HELD FOR LOST FLIER

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 28.—UP—Little hope was held here tonight for Mrs. I. M. Keith-Miller Australian aviatrix, if—as feared—she was forced to land in the gulf stream on her flight today from Havana to Miami.

High seas and winds of gale velocity prevailed.

The commandant of the Key West naval station had not been officially advised the British woman's plane was overdue, but searchers in airplanes roared over the southern tip of Florida without definite clue to her whereabouts.

The only hope for the missing pilot lay in the possibility she successfully negotiated the gulf stream hazards and made a skillful landing on one of the many Keys between here and Miami.

Russians Will Get Citizenship

MOSCOW, Nov. 28. —UP— Millions of Russians suffering serious deprivations because of disfranchisement have been given hope of reinstatement in their citizenship privileges, with all that it implies in the way of the right to hold a job and to receive food.

A new franchise law promulgated in connection with the impending re-election of Soviets make a clearer and more liberal definition of the voting right. In particular it seeks to curb the enthusiasm of local authorities who in past years often invented pretexts for throwing additional thousands into the outlaw class of disfranchised.

A provision, permits the political rehabilitation of all persons—former priests and nobles included—if they can prove that for 5 consecutive years they have done socially useful work and are loyal to the Soviets.

Perhaps the most important provision of the new law is that disfranchisements must be made on the basis of documents. This should automatically prevent widespread abuse of power by election officials who in the past often deprived people of votes on vague rumors and hearsay, too often inspired by personal grudges.

"The day we were married Leo lost his job as elevator operator in the hotel," Geraldine said. "We had to live some way and he had a gun so that decided us.

"Almost every night we would drive around the city and hold up a hotel, restaurant, delicatessen or drugstore. I always sat in the car and kept the motor running while Leo got the money."

Luther In Attack On Young Plan

BERLIN, Nov. 28. —UP— The authoritative voice of Dr. Hans Luther, head of the Reichbank, was added today to those demanding revision of the Young plan.

Speaking before the German federation of industries, Dr. Luther said:

"The reparations can be paid in the long run only if Germany has sufficient export markets. Moreover, the Young plan is feasible only if Germany receives ample long-term capital at cheap rates.

"In the Dawes plan the leading idea was that Germany should pay in accordance with her capacity This must also apply to the Young plan."

HIJACKERS IN ATTACK ON THREE

MARTINEZ, Nov. 28.—Hijackers wounded one man and beat two others to steal ten barrels of grape juice after a race of more than six miles in which a score of shots were fired early yesterday.

Jerry Metaxas, Crockett candy store proprietor was wounded in the shoulder, while George Ryia, Reedley, owner of the truck and J. F. Lawand also of Reedley were injured when struck by the hijackers after their car had been overtaken by the quartet.

The three men were on their way to Crockett with their truck loaded with grape juice barrels when they became aware, shortly after passing the San Joaquin-Contra Costa line that two machines were following them.

Ryia speeded up the truck and the cars kept in close pursuit. Angered at their inability to crowd the truck into a ditch the hijackers began firing at the speeding truck. None of the shots hit any of the three occupants.

Near Brentwood one of the cars was successful in getting along side the truck and one of the hijackers leaped aboard and fired a shot that struck Metaxas. The other two men were attacked by the quartet, beaten and robbed of their truck with its wine cargo and $23 in cash.

They started to walk toward this city and were picked up by a passing motorist. At the hospital here Dr. G. L. Coates, was unable to locate the bullet in the shoulder of Metaxas, but it was believed the wound was not serious.

Metaxas has been a resident of the county for 35 years. The truck was found abandoned in Bay Point by Metaxas after he had gone on a hunt for it. The other two men were released from the hospital after treatment.

THE CRUSADE FOR CHILDHOOD

ONE piece of news today is of supreme interest to the greatest number of thoughtful, sympathetic American women—

That is the opening, in Washington, of the White House Conference on Child Health and Protection—

The report to the country, and especially to the country's motherly women, by twelve hundred experts,

On the health and well-being of the forty-eight million American children—

On what is being done for them—

On what ought to be done for them, and how to do it.

What topic in the newspapers can any real woman take more seriously

Than this crusade for childhood?

It is led by President Hoover himself—

Shortly after his inauguration he issued the call for this conference.

What, in brief, does it signify?

Just this: that the American family is growing more important—

The national family of forty-eight million boys and girls is getting more and better care than ever!

Enlightened fathers and mothers—

those who have organized the White House Conference—

Are not content simply to be good parents to their born children,

But are stretching the walls of their homes to country-wide dimensions.

It is not enough, for today's really motherly woman,

To make sure that the babies in her arms enjoy

All the rights, all the advantages,

All the protection, all the opportunity,

All the health and happiness which are childhood's heritage.

That heritage, she believes, must be made safe

For children in the city slums—

Or in the remote, poverty-stricken mountain villages—

It's these youngsters who, more and more, are being brought into one great American family!

How this is being effected the White House Conference will make clear.

There will be reports on health service, as it touches children.

On their education and training.

On what is being done for handicapped youngsters.

For more than a year, the twelve hundred experts have been discovering

Such facts as that there are 1,500,000 specially gifted children in the country.

And no chance for the special training they should enjoy;

That more than 200,000 youngsters pass through the courts annually;

That more than 18,000 are killed by accidents each year,

And that this appalling slaughter of the innocents has increased steadily since 1900.

Finally, among constructive recommendations, the crusade for childhood will define four objectives.

As plants need four elements—sun, air, earth and water—

So children, the White House Conference will remind us, need the following four elements

To help them to grow from bud to blossom to fruit:

(1) Better chances for their physical development,

(2) More space for play,

(3) A stable home life,

(4) The affection and encouragement of a family.

Is it so much to give to "the least of these"

That this great, rich country of ours dare give less?

WHY THEY EARN

THE WOMAN OF IT: There may be some women who are "working from choice," but there is not one, from among the many intelligent, mature, capable young women whom I know, who is not working because of necessity—necessity not only to support herself but to help her family. This applies to all of them, married and single.

Why should a woman want to work in an office after she is married? What can and does the office hold out to her? As I see it everywhere around me, with so few exceptions that it hurts, the choice is either hard slaving for a halfway decent salary (plus the knowledge that in these hard times there is a man willing to take your job for less), or else a twenty-dollar-a-week job for putting in the hours from nine to five.

Now let's tell 'em whether we're "working from choice." Certainly—if they mean choosing between dependence and independence, or challenging the right of an able-bodied person to contribute, no matter where or to whom. Anyway, what's all the fuss about? There is at least one man in every woman worker's family, and don't tell me she eats while he starves.

FLO STEIN.

THE WOMAN OF IT: A good many men, and I know some, lack ambition to find jobs because their wives have always worked and "brought home the bacon." Married women, to my thinking, do not belong in business except in cases where there is no support and it is necessary. I know married women whose husbands earn plenty to keep them comfortably, yet who hate to relinquish their jobs and who use their salaries wastefully on an abundance of clothes. I know of married women who work because they hate household duties. Many married school teachers are holding their jobs, while thousands of single girls are waiting for their appointments from the board. Such married women should be ousted. It is a married woman's duty to stay at home and make a comfortable home for her husband and children (if any). She cannot do this, going to business.

LAURA M. SORG.

THE WOMAN OF IT: I'm walking my feet off looking for a job, just for the fun of it, you know. Job-hunting is so pleasant I don't really need the money, of course—the very idea! Dick is only three, he has the intelligence of a child of seven; unless that intelligence is properly directed (I can't do it—he needs socializing and the companionship of children) the doctor says Dick will be a neurotic. Now, nursery schools cost money; I haven't the money, though I'm married; so I'm looking for a job—in order to earn "pin money," whatever that may be. If you don't believe it—ask the employers.

A MOTHER.

THE WOMAN OF IT: Three cheers for your article regarding the movement to shift the burden of unemployment on the shoulders of married women engaged in business. I am associated with the National Unemployment League, and my attitude is similar to yours.

G. M. KING.

College President Says Man to Become Extinct.—Headline.

He's already become so, in the opinion of several sad young women of our acquaintance.

Mending the Rug

ORIENTAL rugs may be nicely mended at home. Secure yarns of the various shades found in the rug. If these cannot be matched, use neutral shades corresponding in tone, or the yarns may be dyed as required.

Examine the rug carefully to become familiar with the stitch. If it is merely frayed or worn, work over it with the same stitch in which the rug is woven. To mend a large hole baste a piece of fine burlap on the under side and darn through this, then work into it the colors and designs matching those used in the rug.

This is fascinating work and if carefully done the mending will be quite unnoticeable.

A DISH A DAY

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

In planning winter meals, particularly when the markets offer such an abundance of crisp, fresh vegetables at moderate cost, the housewife must guard against offering too much rich, hearty food. Delicacy is a desirable factor in the menu, even in the season of rich cream soups, opulent roasts and pumpkin pies.

KAREN HOLLIS

The first lesson that the young housewife must learn in menu planning is to offer variety in texture as well as flavor. After you have planned a meal, glance over the courses carefully and see that you have guarded against repetition in texture as well as in flavor. Don't serve a cream soup at a dinner whose main course is a meat pie with thick gravy. Don't follow either of these courses with a vegetable served in Hollandaise, or a dessert that includes custard. Don't serve too hearty a salad if the meat course has been accompanied by a profusion of vegetables.

A piquant and dainty vegetable salad to serve with a heavy meat course is a combination of raw, crisp vegetables served with French dressing. The ingredients may be varied according to your own taste, or according to what the market offers at the moment. Just now, when cucumber once more have become plentiful, they should be included.

Sometimes the following salad is served with a thin, boiled dressing, but French dressing is a better choice when the salad is to be served with a heavy meat course.

AUTUMN SALAD

¼ to ½ head of cabbage (according to size)
1 cup celery, cut in small pieces
1 green pepper, shredded
1 raw carrot, shredded
1 pimento cut in strips
8 stuffed olives, sliced
½ Spanish onion, sliced thin
2 tablespoons capers
French dressing

Soak cabbage and celery in ice water to crisp. Drain and shred the cabbage and cut the celery in small pieces. Arrange cup-like beds of shredded cabbage and fill the center with the following mixture: shredded green pepper, strips of pimento, sliced olives, sliced onion, shredded raw carrot, and capers. Chill thoroughly and add French dressing just before serving.

News From Paris Midseason Openings

By Ann Roberts

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

IT'S NEWS, but not thrilling. "No new lines," "No new fabrics," say the cables. French designers are feeling our wave of depression—eh, what?

Maybe they think we're not interested in something absolutely new in the way of dress to lift us out of our gloom. Maybe they argue that we need a period of rest and relaxation after jumping about so hurriedly from one new fashion to another.

Anyway, here's a chance for our American designers to crash in and produce something so fresh and inspiring that we will adopt their styles before we know what we are doing and, by our mass enthusiasm, proclaim them the design experts of the world.

As yet we have only cables to go by. No samples have arrived. But I will give you some of the staccato notes that have come by wire showing which way the wind of smartness is blowing.

VIONNET, always a leader, shows:

New colors for evening and day wear.

Sapphire blue in soft chiffon velvet, collar, two scarfs that cross and fall over the back.

Strawberry and gray in street ensemble—the coat rough homespun, with a collar of squirrel.

No black or brown shown in this house.

Self-scarfs on coats replace collars.

Semi-sports dresses with accompanying jackets, all in bright colors.

CHANEL

Softly tailored suits of worsteds resembling jerseys.

Two new evening colors—biscuit (a yellow beige) and a beigey gray. Both used in chiffon only.

One new note in the softer dresses—hip trimmings. Pleated ruffles and wide tucked ruffles placed at the widest part of the hips—extremely youthful.

GOUPY

Suits again for every possible occasion, sport, street and afternoon. Short, jaunty, collarless jackets, blouses of satin, plaid taffeta and heavy lace.

For dressier suits, collarless jackets had elbow length sleeves banded at edges in fox. Long gloves worn to accent color contrast.

One evening dress of white crepe roma beaded all over in imitation of flowered chiffon. Another of black mousseline beaded all over in tiny white crystals.

JANE REGNY

Plaids emphasized in most interesting manner. In blouses, mackinaws, Norfolk jackets.

Soft silk waists in various sized plaids and checks.

Evening dresses, frankly the gay 90's. Stiff materials, tight fitting with Princess lines. One of taffeta had large bows over a ruffle at the knees, the ends of the bow at the back forming a train.

PATOU

The pull-over sweater still good. This worn with box pleated skirts extremely short—about fourteen inches from the floor.

Plaids again.

A few printed crepe de Chines—small patterns on black grounds.

Practically all coats collarless. Evening coats full length. Day coats no flare or fullness, full length and unbelted.

New line—apron effect for silk dresses.

Dark blue thread lace for informal dinner dresses emphasized the diagonal treatment of ruffles running from shoulder to hem.

ARDANSE

Silk jersey for sport, street and evening.

A lacquer red velveteen scarf handkerchief knitted on the shoulder as accessory to simple chiffon dinner dress of same color.

LUCIEN LELONG

Good color combinations—terra-cotta and brown, light and dark gray, light and dark green, gray and brown.

Great deal of satin for daytime and evening. Also taffeta for evening.

Very few prints—those shown mostly in gray or brown.

Jackets double-breasted on sport suits. Plaids greatly in evidence combined with plain jersey or worsted skirts.

GENERAL NEWS

White satin evening dresses with sapphire blue velvet evening wrap and emerald jewelry.

Biscuit colored evening dress in chiffon, worn with same shade of velvet evening coat, trimmed in sable; long brown suede gloves and slippers.

Plaid fabrics extremely important.

Box pleats and fan pleats on day and evening clothes.

Diagonal movement on every type of garment.

Suits continue in importance.

Various shades of green most popular color.

Complete disappearance of couturier jewelry as we have known it. Revival of old-fashioned pieces.

Absence of prints.

Absence of black.

Waistline a bit lower than at last collections—really at the top of the hip.

Absence of fur.

Ruchings and pleatings in net and organdy at neck and sleeves replacing lingerie and lace collars.

Lollipops for The Party

AT the children's party nothing could give more pleasure than candy holders for the place cards.

The lollypop lends itself charmingly to decoration and can be transformed into such a variety of attractive forms that each child may have a different favor.

The stick of the lollypop is usually wrapped with crepe paper and stuck into a large button mould, and this may stand on a fluffy or fringed mat on the paper covering the lollypop, and it is dressed to suit the occasion, and then the place card is attached.

A headband with small, upright feathers of red, blue, green and yellow crepe paper will make an Indian. A Pilgrim hat, a collar and ribbon necktie will represent John Alden, and a Priscilla can be likewise easily fashioned. The head of a Cupid cut from paper, pasted on a lollypop and the stick thrust through a cardboard heart before being put into the mould makes an attractive Valentine favor.

For the Thanksgiving favor draw the features of a girl and stretch a yellow paper cap over her head, then paste autumn leaves (cut from decorative paper) back of the head in frame fashion and tie on a bow of yellow ribbon on the end of which attach the place card.

Make a bunny by drawing the features on a paper disk and stretching white crepe paper over the lollypop to form a cap, attach upstanding ears of pink and white crepe paper, then tie a fluffy bow under the chin and to the flowing end attach the card. A rabbit face can be cut from decorative crepe paper and pasted on the lollypop and an elaborate Easter bonnet put on and tied under the chin with a huge bow.

Decorated lollypops are obtainable in the shops, but it is great fun to make them.

Perfumed Humidity

WHEN using a gas radiator or an oil stove to heat a room it is quite necessary to keep a pan of water on the stove to supply moisture. In some homes decorated jars of water are always kept on the radiator. A deep oval dish in tin or aluminum may be painted and decorated and used for this purpose.

If you like the odor of perfume, drop a few lavender seeds or lemon verbena into the water and you will get just a delicate whiff of the pleasant scent. Perhaps you would prefer your favorite perfume—this may be used in the same way.

GETTING AT THE FACTS

HOW that Wickersham commission works:

CHAIRMAN—Gentlemen, let us come to order and approach our task again.

MEMBER—Don't you think we ought to huddle this time?

CHAIRMAN—I am not in favor of the huddle system. It wastes too much time.

MEMBER—We've got all the time in the world. When I got appointed to this commission I closed out my business and threw away the key.

CHAIRMAN—But I should like to report our findings to Mr. Hoover while he is still President.

MEMBER—That's all right, but you've still got till March, 1933—and even then he might be re-elected. You don't want us to use snap judgment, do you?

CHAIRMAN—No, gentlemen, I don't want to drive you, but we have been considering law enforcement for more than a year now.

MEMBER—That's right. I remember a year ago this time I bought some American Telephone at 246 and look at it now.

SECOND MEMBER—I took an awful licking in International Nickel.

THIRD MEMBER—Those higher copper prices should help things out. I think you'll see the market go upward.

FOURTH MEMBER—It can't go up too soon for me. Why, I——

CHAIRMAN — Gentlemen, gentlemen, will you come to order and consider the amendment?

MEMBER—What amendment?

CHAIRMAN — The Eighteenth Amendment. Should we report favorably on the repeal?

MEMBER—How did we stand the last time we took that up?

CHAIRMAN—At the last meeting we voted 22 to 6 for adjournment. That was the session when we had that argument about the lighter golf ball.

MEMBER—I remember. And I still think the lighter ball will throw you off your game.

SECOND MEMBER—Mr. Chairman, I think we should give it a fair trial.

CHAIRMAN—You mean prohibition?

SECOND MEMBER—No, I mean the lighter golf ball. If Bobby Jones——

CHAIRMAN (banging gavel)—Gentlemen, we are assembled to consider prohibition!

MEMBER—Do I need a shave?

SECOND MEMBER—No, you can get by. You're lucky you haven't got a beard like mine.

MEMBER—Is it rough?

SECOND MEMBER—I'll say it is. Say, do you use a safety razor or the old-fashioned kind?

MEMBER—I usually use a safety, but the blades don't run as good as they ought to.

SECOND MEMBER—That's been my experience, too. Why——

CHAIRMAN (walloping table with gavel again)—Gentlemen, we must get busy and draft this report. If there are no objections, I shall read the latest statistics.

MEMBER—Statistics don't mean a thing in a Harvard-Yale game. Harvard's got to stop Booth to have a chance.

SECOND MEMBER — Yeah, the breaks always decide a game like that.

THIRD MEMBER—Absolutely. A blocked kick can overturn all the statistics from here to hellandgone.

FOURTH MEMBER—You got to consider Harvard's lateral pass, though. If——

CHAIRMAN (whamming gavel)—Gentlemen, will you give the subject of law enforcement your attention?

MEMBER—Well, what about it?

CHAIRMAN—That's what we must decide.

MEMBER—I got a date for luncheon with a blond.

SECOND MEMBER—Wait a minute and I'll sneak out with you if they're getting down to work.

FOURTH MEMBER—Did you bring your dice along, Jake?

THIRD MEMBER—Yeah. Let's have a sub-committee meeting in Room D and roll the bones. Tip off the rest of the boys.

FOURTH MEMBER—Mr. Chairman, in view of something that has just come up, I don't think we should act too hastily on this report. I therefore move we report progress and adjourn till two weeks from next Wednesday.

(The motion is carried by a landslide.)

THIS AND THAT

Mr. Tunney made a long speech to prep school boys at Exeter Academy. But Gene was only tuning up for another jury.

Buying apples to help the unemployed is all right if it doesn't raise the price of cider.

Income taxes will be higher for this year, but most of us can laugh that off.

The price of copper has jumped from 9½ to 12 cents and postage stamps will leap from 2 to 2½ cents. You will notice Abraham Lincoln on the pennies and George Washington on the stamps, so give the Republican Party credit.

Laborers have quit work in Spain. They are probably striking for higher heels and longer siestas.

Things are so tough this year that 5,000,000 charter members were thrown out of Christmas clubs for non-payment of dues.

As in the past, the committee in charge of tickets for the Elks charity show expect to find a large number of applicants in line to secure reserved seats at 1 p. m. today on the ground floor of Elks club building.

With the show playing for two nights, Edgar Dale, chairman of tickets has announced that there will be plenty of good seats to be had. Every effort will be made to serve all applicants promptly while the rule of first come first served will be strictly followed, and all reservations must be made at the office.

The box office will remain open until show time Dec. 4 and 5.

While the main action of the show has been set at Heidelburg Inn in the college town of Heidelburg university, the opening act has been cleverly arranged in the nature of a farewell entertainment to a group of Elks about to depart on a tour to Richmond.

Acting as ballad soloists and assisted by a chorus of 21 Elks, Art Irwin and Al Newman will render late and popular ballads.

Girl, Found To Have Heart On Right Side

BERKELEY, Nov. 28.—Although she is only seven years of age, Ruth Walsh of this city is different than most people. She has her heart on the right side of her body. All of her vital organs are similarly transposed.

Discovery of the phenomona was made when she was examined for rheumatism. At a hospital the stethescope failed to record the heart beats when placed on the usual side.

However the instrument recorded the beats perfectly when placed on the right side. An X-ray photo revealed that the other organs were similarly transposed, but Dr. William J. Kerr, professor of medicine at the University of California, who has the case under his care, says there is no reason why the girl should not live as long as any other person. She is bright and normal in every other respect.

LABOR WINS IN BRITISH FIGHT

LONDON, Nov. 28. —UP— The laborite government of Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonaald emerged from a stormy session in the house of commons Thursday night with a vote of confidence on its handling of the recent imperial conference.

The debate was bitter as the opposition rallied to the attack behind a conservative motion of censure stateing that "this house censures the government for its failure to formulate any efefctive proposals for extension of empire trade and for its refusal to consider offers made by dominions."

The motion was defeated by 299 to 234.

Charles J. Simomns, Laborite, slapped the Right Hon. Earl Winterton in the face with a thickly folded "order paper." Winterton had criticized the chancellor of the exchequer.

J. H. Thomas, dominion secretary, called the Canadian proposals for empire trade "humbug."

Showdown On Land Armament Seen In Attack

GENEVA, Nov. 28.—UP— Count Johann von Bernstorff's broadside against the preparatory disarmament negotiations of the League of Nations was believed today to forecast an attempt by Germany to force a showdown on land armaments and to presage a campaign for revision of the peace treaties.

Von Brenstorff demanded that Germany have parity and security along with other nations and said that the draft convention for world wide disarmament being prepared here sacrificed land armaments for naval armaments "in respect to existing treaties." He added that he would not vote on the clause in the proposed convention dealing with previous treaty obligations.

NO HOPE FOR MOONEY, PAL PARDON

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 28.—UP—On the eve of a state supreme court decision settling the fate of Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings there came from across the Pacific today a voice claiming the pair were innocent of the San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing, July 22, 1916, in which 10 persons were killed.

Mooney and Billings are serving life sentences as a result of conviction of the dynamiting murders. "I know they are innocent," Major Vincente R. Barros, a former Army officer who is now a planter in the Philippines, told the United Press in Manila.

And while this new evidence came to light, the California supreme court was considering a decision of paramount importance to both men. The decision is to be announced Monday. It pertains to a pardon application by Billings and is coming from the court because of a provision in California law that twice convicted men, such as Billings, must have a favorable court recommendation before the governor may issue a pardon.

Mooney Involved

Mooney is involved also, due to an announcement by Governor C. C. Young that the cases are similar and that both shall receive similar treatment. Mooney's petition for a pardon is now before the governor.

Information received by the United Press indicates that the court will decline to recommend a pardon for Billings. This leaves two avenues open for the pair—sentences may be commuted or the men may continue serving their life sentences. There is no hope, the United Press was told by a usually reliable informant, for a complete pardon.

Major Barros entered the case dramatically. He left the Army in 1922 and is now a planter. Being a native Filipino, he said he remained silent throughout the years because he was afraid that being involved in a sensational trial might hurt his chances for promotion in the army.

Saw Suitcase

According to Barros, a man, obviously a Latin, placed a suitcase at the corner where the explosion occurred and then fled, bumping into Barros and grappling with him.

"He cursed me in a foreign tongue," Barros said. "Then he ran and was lost in the crowd. A moment later the explocion threw me to the ground."

Mooney and Billings are not Latin in appearance. The former is a typical black Irishman while Billings, a slender blond, is of a Nordic type. "The man was not either Mooney or Billings," Barros told the United Press.

Will Return

Barros expressed willingness to return to San Francisco to tell his story to the supreme court, as did John Macdonald, recanting star witness against both men. It was MacDonald's return here, in July, that told the supreme court that he testified falsly when he identified Mooney and Billings as the bombers.

Evidence gathered at the MacDonald hearing is that being ruled on in the decision to be made public Monday. It is considered possible that friends of Mooney and Billings will insist that Barros be brought to San Francisco to tell a special hearing his story.

Barros said he arrived in San Francisco July 13, 1916, and was here during the parade. Weight is added to his story by Army records which show that he was on leave of absence from Manila in San Francisco at the time of the bombing. He arrived in San Francisco July 13, 1916 and left Sept. 5, 1916. The bombing occurred July 22, 1916.

RATE PARITY FOR CITY SEEN

mittee of the Richmond chamber of commerce, told the examiner of the negotiations the chamber has made with rail and water carriers. He declared that both agencies are willing to accord parity rates, but that they have failed to agree on a division of that cut.

In connection with Scott's testimony, City Attorney Thomas M. Carlson, who represented the city at the hearing, highly praised the councilman for the manner in which he presented the evidence.

Robert Hutcherson, Associated Oil company's traffic manager, declared that there were no reasons why the parity should not be granted. He declared that the Associated company could use the Richmond docks almost ten per cent cheaper that it could ship through other ports, if the new rate were placed into effect.

Experts Talks

Another oil company's representative appeared in the person of Harry Gunnerson, chief rate expert of the Standard Oil company of California. He declared that products of his company that are not shipped by tankers, could be transported at considerable less expense from the local wharves.

A. A. Moran, traffic manager for the Parr Terminal corporation, which organization operates the local wharves, declared that the facilities here are equal to Oakland and that the railroads and steamship companies that serve other cities also serve this locality.

He also said that many shippers in the San Joaquin valley were anxious to use the local port facilities and they would do so if the rates were the same as those in other cities of the bay region.

That the failure of Richmond to have the same rates as Oakland has caused the Standard Sanitary company here to go to a large expense to truck its products to Oakland was the testimony given by T. G. Differding, traffic representative of the Sanitary company.

Chandler Talks

Captain H. P. Lauritzen, of the Richmond Navigation and Improvement company testified that all of the facilities Oakland and San Francisco had for the barging of goods could be had in Richmond.

Frank Chandler, traffic manager of the Certain-teed products company also testified, urging that the rates be granted and citing the benefits it would bring his company and the city of Richmond.

Prior to the hearing, which was heard by a large number of interested citizens, Haggerty was taken on a tour of the local waterfront.

RECORD RADIUM SUPPLY IS DUE

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 16.—UP—The largest single supply of radium in the world—5700 milligrams—will be delivered to the state institution for the study of malignant diseases at Buffalo before the end of December, according to the state health department.

Together with accessary equipment, the supply represents an expenditure of nearly $300,000 by the state. The precious mineral, which is so powerful that less than six grams, or about one-fifth of an ounce, is equivalent to the effect of an X-ray machine using 1,000,000 volts will be used in cancer control research.

At present, the amount of radium at the institute is so limited that it can be used only in the form of emanations or gas pumped from the radium solution and compressed into capsules. With the new supply, which is now being tested at the United States bureau of standards, it will be possible to use the radium itself.

The Buffalo institute was the first laboratory in the world established solely for the study of cancer.

DRIVER HELD ON GUN CHARGE

A deputy sheriff's badge was not enough to allow Frank Friel, 37 of Oakland to retain his gun and automobile when he was stopped by Officer Howard Thulen in El Cerrito while driving through the city with only one headlight burning.

Friel immediately displayed a badge issued by Burton Becker, when he was sheriff of Alameda county.

Thulen, suspicious of the man, brought him to headquarters where he was charged with carrying a concealed weapon. He was released upon his recognizance, but police retained the automobile and gun. Friel is to appear on the concealed weapon charge.

Canada Police Radio Station

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 28.—UP—The city of Winnipeg claims to be the first city in Canada to install radio-telephone equipment to be used exclusively in the prevention and detection of crime, and the apprehension of criminals.

A transmitter with a power output of 2600 watts has been set up in the signal office of the central police station. Messages and instructions broadcast by it on a wave length of 124 metres are picked up by receivers installed in six radio-equipped cruiser cars, which patrol the city.

The police radio station will be known as Station URW, and is powerful enough to broadcast messages which may be picked up within a 50-mile radius.

The new police broadcasting system may serve as a nucleus for a network which may possibly cover the province of Manitoba, in the opinion of Chief of Police Chris H. Newton.

2 FERRIES IN CRASH WITH SHIPS

and two score commuters hastily climbed up ladders dropped overside by the Pennsylvanian's crew before it was ascertained that the ferry was in no danger of sinking.

The only injuries reported were two passengers on the Oakland who were cut by glass.

Damage Small

Captain Otto Olsen, in charge of the Oakland, brough the vessel into its slip in San Francisco, and after discharging passengers, it was towed to the Alameda shipyards for repairs.

The Pennsylvania, in command of Captain C. A. Bamforth, also proceeded to its San Francisco pier, where damage was found confined to a small leak above waterline and considerable loss of paint.

The Santa Clara, enroute from Oakland to San Francisco with thousands of commuters aboard, was struck a glancing blow by the Irisbank, but almost no damage was done.

Captain John Souza, in charge of the Santa Clara, had seen the freighter, and was backing at the time the larger ship struck.

Worst Fogs

The Irisbank, in command of Capt. Ernest Blackmore, was in tow of the Tug Sea Queen enroute to Oakland.

The collision merely "scared" the Santa Clara a few minutes. There was no panic, and both vessels proceeded to port after it was seen that that there was no danger.

Today's fog was one of the worst in years. Visibility was reduced to less than 100 feet, vessels ran on slow schedules, and the transbay amphibians were kept at anchor until noon brought a clearing.
